

Predicting Alzheimer's Disease (AD) Progression with mixed data groups

- Currently, it is very challenging to predict which patients with mild cognitive impairment will progress to more severe AD in the future.
- We are using a decision tree to predict AD progression because it is interpretable by clinicians and handles mixed data types and missing values well.